

Unfriendly Friends

To new and old Fakebook unfriends
I will not un-write this opinion
A poem absent notification
After I push the button to send

I read the words that you composed
I wearied of the one's you borrowed
Then one day your account is closed
No longer could you be followed

I once shook hands with some of you
While most were scarce acquainted
Each to ourselves we remain true
Into our corners that we painted

The rift that sorely did not mend
The bridge we've not uncrossed
Conviction's folly and what it cost
Too much stir and too little blend

The reposts that you multiplied
The sameness of it all
The pretence even though you tried
Like any junky before withdrawal

You might have been a flat-earther
Embarrassed you were played for a fool
Perhaps confused by climate or weather
Honours brainwash in lame stream school

Perhaps an ambulance chaser
Perhaps your cause was pot
Till one day with digital eraser
Gone unfortunate wearisome blot

Perhaps you only think you know
The root and branches of the Law
Perhaps you think that politics
Can be addressed despite this flaw

Perhaps you think the puppet POTUS
Holds power seated with authority
But he's a sham with Title bogus
Whose throne is porcelain and vanity

Perhaps you think they dropped the bomb
On Nagasaki and Hiroshima
But the carpet they unrolled was napalm
Do you see the ones toward camp FEMA?

Perhaps you stand against vaccination
The central banks even chemtrails
But you consented to your station
To ride out the train wreck you bewail

Do you think that you can change the world?
How to surrender your slave status?
Does it matter the false flags unfurled?
What Court do you think issues justice?

Shall I regret who cut whom loose?
Shall I hope you will come back?
Shall I message you a plea for truce?
But who shall gain must admit their lack

I've been unfriended of course myself
And I could tell you how that felt
Then set the memories on their shelf
And turned the page without regret

Of all the things to undo while
We still can make some connection
Resending request with emoticon smile
Regardless our present direction

Your reason I'm left to wonder
A mystery without a clue
To an uncertain fate we blunder
Unfriendly friends the residue

I can unmake some old mistakes
I ponder whether you can yours
A simple click is all it takes
Will you unblock that bolted door?